McCreary Tower 475 Deacon Blvd Winston Salem, NC

Program Overview and Objectives

This training will provide an overview of the music therapy profession, including information about board-certified music therapists, approaches to music therapy, types of interventions used in treatment, collaboration with other healthcare professionals, and how music therapy is specifically used in the Atrium Health Wake Forest Baptist system (namely the Amos Cottage Therapeutic Day Program). In this session, you can expect to grow your understanding of music therapy and how it benefits a variety of patient populations. Come join this hands-on session as we learn more about music's impact on the brain and how music is used as a therapeutic tool to reach non-musical therapeutic goals!

The Amos Cottage Therapeutic Day Program, part of the Department of Developmental and Behavioral Pediatrics with Atrium Health Wake Forest Baptist offers behavioral health intervention and academic supports with wrap-around services for children ages 3-7 demonstrating significant behavioral, social and or emotional challenges interfering with their ability to fully function in a class and or home setting. A multi-disciplinary team approach is employed to provide the child and family members with intensive treatment and support. One of the members of the treatment is a Board Certified Music Therapist; who uses Music as a treatment modality to reduce mental health symptoms and support the development of social and emotional competency skills of the children served.

Upon completion of this course, you will be able to:

- Describe the role of Music Therapists and the services they provide.
- Identify music-based interventions used in music therapy.
- Identify various approaches to music therapy practice.
- Discuss how you can integrate music and/or music therapy into the work you do each day for more positive outcomes.
