Program Overview

The vast majority of clinical supervisors have long learned skills that may inspire cultural competence in supervisees. In order to foster personal and professional growth, in both supervisor and supervisee, the infusion of culturally sensitive and responsive practices and intentional activities into clinical supervision is an integral next step. Culturally sensitive and responsive supervision practices are not solely aimed at teaching knowledge or skills. By providing supervisees and supervisors with opportunities to reflect on one's own cultural identity, attitudes, and experiences in the context of clinical supervision, understanding, sensitivity and awareness will be deepened. This training focuses on assisting clinical supervisors to be more culturally sensitive, responsive, and self-aware through experiential activities, active discussion, and participation.

Topics

- Explain the importance of cultural context being integrated into various aspects of clinical supervision
- Discuss ways to initiate conversations with supervisees about one's cultural self with increased confidence
- List practical exercises to assist clinical supervisees in reflecting on their own cultural identity
- Outline a supervision contract that underscores the importance of and the process for cultural identity development in the supervision process
