Program Overview

Grief is a deeply personal, often isolating journey. This workshop is designed to equip healthcare providers and support teams with practical tools, trauma-informed communication skills, and self-care strategies. Participants will explore ways to compassionately navigate patient loss while avoiding compassion fatigue and engage in the hands-on creation of various keepsakes.

Who Should Participate

This workshop will be beneficial to nurses, social workers, child-life specialists, counselors, chaplains, and other care providers or interested professionals.
